

Humphrey renews campaign

PRINCETON — Accepting the "risks involved," Sen. Hubert Humphrey resumed his presidential campaign Wednesday. Humphrey told Princeton University students it was "essential we do not permit an isolated act of violence" to undercut the Democratic process. In Tuesday's primaries, Wallace won Michigan with 50 per cent of the vote. McGovern finished second with 27 per cent and Humphrey with 16. In Maryland, Wallace received 40 per cent, Humphrey 7 and McGovern 22.

Hanoi rejects cease-fire

HANOI — Hanoi rejected Nixon's cease-fire appeal; a climatic battle at Hue is expected. North Vietnam said Nixon's proposed internationally supervised cease-fire "is, in essence, only aimed at forcing the Vietnamese people to lay down their arms, abandon their just fight and accept the puppet administration" of President Thieu. It said the Vietnam question must be solved between the U.S. and Vietnam.

Thousands cross Berlin Wall

BERLIN — Thousands of West Berliners streamed through nine crossings in the Berlin Wall Wednesday, kicking off an eight-day visiting period authorized by the Communists to celebrate the Pentecost holiday. Both East and West Germans hoped the visits would be more frequent since the West German Parliament approved nonaggression treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland earlier in the day.

Army equipment deficient

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators reported Wednesday that 83 per cent of the first line tanks in two armored divisions were unable to perform effectively last year, and that 70 per cent of an infantry division's recoilless rifles were deficient. The findings were contained in a report by the General Accounting Office, which concluded that three of the four U.S. Army divisions it inspected last year suffered from "major deficiencies" which severely restricted their combat readiness, said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis.

Gold price soars

LONDON — The price of gold soared to record highs for the second consecutive day Wednesday in Europe and Asia, the heavy buying prompted by South Africa's decision to reduce its supply of the metal to free markets. Gold closed on the London market at $57.75 per ounce, an increase of $2.50 over the record closing price Tuesday, and its price during trading Wednesday reached $58.20 per ounce.

Second operation scheduled

Wallace has slim chance to walk

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI) — George C. Wallace was cheered by newspaper accounts Wednesday of his twin primary victories, but a neurosurgeon who examined the Alabama governor gave him a "less than 50-50" chance of ever walking again.

As Wallace lay half-paralyzed in the intensive care unit of Holy Cross Hospital, Dr. James Garber Galbraith of Birmingham, Ala., said the governor would undergo a second operation in the next week or 10 days for removal of a .38-caliber bullet lodged in his spinal column.

Barring unforeseen complications, the surgeon told reporters, Wallace could expect to recover from his four gunshot wounds within six weeks, "but whether he will be able to walk again is open to question."

The governor, he said, is conscious, lucid and aware of his condition. "He simply said he was going to fight it, and he would make it," said Galbraith.

As other doctors and governor's aides had earlier, Galbraith said it was too early to determine whether the bullet remaining in Wallace's body had actually severed his spinal cord, although that was a possibility.

The Washington Post quoted "a reliable medical source" at the hospital as saying that the bullet severed the spinal cord and that Wallace's chances of walking again were "zero."

Galbraith, who flew here from the University of Alabama Medical Center in Birmingham, said he had "reservations" whether Wallace would ever regain full use of his legs. Asked directly about the odds, the surgeon replied: "Less than 50-50."

Other authorities flatly denied the Post report and insisted they could not be certain whether Wallace's paralysis from the waist down will be permanent until the slug is removed from his lower spinal column and the extent of damage is assessed.

Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary, said "our plans are to continue" with Wallace's presidential campaign despite his wounds. But Camp added no decision had been made whether to encourage a write-in campaign in the California primary. Local efforts were continuing in the state on the governor's behalf and "we are looking favorably to the idea."

He added Mrs. Wallace might campaign in her husband's place during the remaining primaries, but that a final decision depended on Wallace's recovery.

During the afternoon, Wallace and his wife, Cornelia, posed briefly for his personal photographer, whose picture was released to the press. The photograph showed Mrs. Wallace leaning over her husband's shoulder as he lay raised in bed, holding a copy of the Baltimore Sun with his uninjured left arm. The front page headline read: Wallace Wins in Maryland, Michigan; Hospital takes him off the Critical List.

The guard was reinforced Wednesday at Baltimore County Jail in Towson, where Arthur Herman Bremer, 21, of Milwaukee, who is charged in the attempted Wallace assassination, is being held in lieu of $200,000 bond.

The suspect's father, William Bremer, a 58-year-old truck driver, and brother, Roger, 18, visited him for the first time since the shooting Monday afternoon at a Laurel, Md., shopping center. Neither visitor spoke to newsmen.

Galbraith and Dr. Baltazar E. Perez, a local neurosurgeon, said the bullet had penetrated the spinal column in the area of Wallace's hips.

Galbraith said there was a "compression" of the spinal cord caused by the impact of the bullet, but that X-rays showed no evidence of bone shattering in the region.

Wallace continues to have no feeling or movement in his legs from the hips down, he said.

Gov. and Mrs. George Wallace smile over twin primary victories

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After working through the night, House and Senate conferees agreed early Wednesday on a bill that would order a halt to most court imposed busing for 18 months.

After agreeing on the busing provision, the lawmakers completed work on a compromise $18.5 billion aid to higher education bill after negotiating for two months in 17 meetings.

But their compromise measure — the busing provision was an amendment — appeared to face serious trouble in both the House and the Senate, where it must be approved. Liberal lawmakers said the busing provisions were too strong while busing opponents argued they were too weak.

The 32 lawmakers on the joint conference committee finally finished work at 5:30 a.m., but they were still badly divided at the end. House conferees voted 11 to 9 for the compromise and just 7 of the 15 senators approved it.

The key antibusing language in the measure would block court busing orders or prevent them from starting until all legal appeals had been exhausted. That provision would remain in effect until Dec. 31, 1973.

If the House and Senate approve the compromise, busing now being carried on under a court order could be halted if an appeal were possible to a higher court and the appeal was being pursued.

The measure would provide that busing being carried on under a court order in which all appeals had been exhausted would have to be continued.

The conferees added language to a provision in the House-passed bill which said no federal funds could be used for court ordered busing under any circumstances. The compromise provided that federal funds could be used for court-ordered busing if requested by a local school district, but not if the busing impaired any student's health.

President Nixon proposed the idea of a moratorium just after the March 14 Florida primary in which busing was the No. 1 issue. Nixon's proposal called for a moratorium until June 30, 1973.

Opponents argued that a moratorium would be unconstitutional and if the House and Senate approved the conferees' bill, it undoubtedly will be challenged in the courts.

Senators agree on gun control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a Senate subcommittee reportedly agreed in principle on tougher handgun controls, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Wednesday rejected the idea that more Secret Service agents is the way to protect political candidates.

Kennedy, who lost two brothers to assassins' bullets, spoke out in a statement as Chairman Birch Bayh, D-Ind., of the Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee said the panel had approved in principle his bill to bar further sales of handguns not suitable for sporting uses — such as the one used to shoot Gov. George C. Wallace Monday.

"What sense does it make to increase the protection around political personalities when it is clear that even a heavily guarded candidate cannot be protected from an assailant who is single-mindedly intent on carrying out his mission?" Kennedy asked.

Bayh said the subcommittee still had to decide on minimum standards for barrel length, weight and caliber and postponed action on those differences until later. He added that he and Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., who has led past opposition to additional gun control laws, would meet in an effort to draft criteria acceptable to both.

S. Viets battle 500 enemy 40 miles outside Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese forces fought an estimated 500 Communist troops 40 miles east of Saigon in the once pacified Phuoc Tuy province Wednesday military spokesmen said. Officers said heavy infiltration of the province threatened Saigon from its lightly defended southeastern approaches.

Communists also increased the pressure on two strategic cities in the Central Highlands Wednesday, killing seven Americans at Kontum and blowing up an ammunition dump at Pleiku, but the South Vietnamese said they punched open a highway linking the two cities to the coast.

President Nixon ordered a 1,100-man Marine air unit into Vietnam from the Philippines as part of a move to build up air and sea strength in Southeast Asia while bringing home the ground troops.

The Saigon high command said the battle east of the city was just three miles southwest of Duc Thanh district town within sight of the Nui Dat base, occupied by Australian forces before they withdrew from Vietnam last year.

Military sources said the pullout of the Australians left the province wide open to infiltration from the north. The province's biggest city, Vung Tau, 20 miles south of Duc Thanh is used as a vacation center by American troops.

Scattered attacks by local Viet Cong forces have been reported since the beginning of the 49-day-old Communist offensive, but Wednesday's fight marked the first time a full battalion of North Vietnamese had been spotted in the province since 1968.

The high command said warplanes and artillery barrages helped the South Vietnamese kill 97 Communists during the battle. Six government soldiers died and 13 were wounded, spokesmen said.

Battlefield action on the more traditional northern and northwestern approaches to the capital tapered off slightly Wednesday, the high command said.

The Communists fired a rocket into the market of Trang Bang district (county) capital, 26 miles northwest of Saigon, wounding five civilians, spokesmen said.

At battered An Loc province capital, 60 miles north of Saigon North Vietnamese gunners poured another 1,800 rockets, mortars and artillery shells into the town and scattered fighting was reported in and around An Loc. Field reports said the shelling and fighting cost government troops at least five dead and 20 wounded. They said 17 North Vietnamese were killed and some weapons and ammunition seized from the bodies.

U.S. B52 bombers flew three fresh missions overnight near An Loc, dumping at least 250 tons of high explosives on suspected Communist positions within two miles of the town.

Another 10 waves of the huge bombers hit within seven miles of Kontum province capital, 260 miles north of Saigon, the U.S. command said.

The seven Americans were killed when their transport plane was hit by Communist rocket fire at the Kontum airfield and crashed. It was the largest number of Americans killed in a single incident since a U.S. helicopter crashed near Saigon one week ago, killing 32 men.

Road show costs $193,000

Traveling lottery show expensive

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Pennsylvania's new state lottery will spend more than $193,000 in 15 months to pay for dancing girls, actors and inflated transportation fees. The money goes to MarkeTechs Inc., of York, whose vice president is the former chairman of the Democratic State Committee. The firm provides a "road show" for drawing winning lottery numbers.

New Jersey, which operates a similar lottery road show, does not have these expenses. That state uses its own vehicles and state employees to run it.

The Lottery Bureau originally contracted with MarkeTechs to run the first 21 drawings of the lottery through June 30. The cost was $55,650.

Revenue Secretary Robert P. Kane said Wednesday a similar contract will be signed soon for the next fiscal year. At the present rate of $2,650 per drawing, it could be about $137,000.

Under the contract, MarkeTechs provides a master of ceremonies, two dancing girls, an advance man to scout good drawing locations and the delivery of equipment.

The bureau spends $1,200 to produce the show in a different part of the state each week and $1,450 for the cost of delivering the equipment for selecting the winning number.

Added to these fixed costs, are plane and train fares, telephone calls and lodging for each person with a 15 per cent service charge tacked on. The contract specifies that lodging, meals and phone calls are not to exceed $25 a day for each person.

The bureau also will be forced to pay an estimated $922 in highway tolls for transporting the equipment. In New Jersey, the state lottery drawing uses a similar format with a master of ceremonies.

Agency pays MC

"But we do not pay him," said Ralph Batch, director of the New Jersey Lottery Commission. "He is supplied free of cost by the advertising agency that promotes the state lottery."

Batch said New Jersey also uses its own trailer to transport the drawing equipment and state employees stage the show.

Bremer security tightened

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — With security measures tightened because of a reported Ku Klux Klan threat, Arthur H. Bremer, 21, who is charged with the attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, was visited by his father and teen-age brother Wednesday in the Baltimore County jail.

William Bremer, 58, a Milwaukee, Wis., truck driver, and his son, Roger, 18, were hurried inside the three-story brick jail after county police met their airplane at Friendship Airport, just south of here. After a brief visit, Bremer's father and brother left the jail through a side door and were driven to an unknown destination.

Four FBI agents and a U.S. Marshall stood outside Bremer's 8-by-10 foot cell on the jail's main floor. Two more FBI agents stood outside the jail's main door. The jail itself is surrounded by a chain link fence.

The additional security measures were put in effect earlier Wednesday when a Baltimore newspaper received an anonymous telephone call, saying that two Ku Klux Klan members were driving to Baltimore to "get" Bremer, who is charged with wounding Wallace as the Alabama governor campaigned at Laurel.

The caller said the Klan members were armed with a .45 caliber automatic pistol and a .30 caliber Winchester rifle and would try to take a police officer hostage to gain entrance to the jail.

The newspaper said the caller reported that the two men were "staunch supporters" of Wallace and were intent on "revenge."

This week's winning lottery number is:

306848

Here's how you can win: —$50,000 if all six digits of the number match the number drawn.

—$4,000 if the last five digits match.

—$40 if the last three digits match.

Consolation prizes for "near misses" are:

—$1,000 if the first five digits match.

—$100 if the middle four digits match.

—$40 if the first three of the last four digits match and the last digit misses by one of matching.

Young girl criticizes legislators

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Speaker Herbert Fineman, quoting a letter from a schoolgirl, warned members of the House Wednesday to be on their good behavior during this season of school field trips to the capitol.

Fineman read a letter written to Gov. Milton J. Shapp by Josephine Elia of Reading. It said:

"I like the surroundings of the capitol building a lot.

"When the House of Representatives was in session, I didn't enjoy seeing a man throwing papers on the floor, a man reading the newspaper while the speaker was talking, men putting their feet on their desks in a reclining position—like they were bored to tears.

"Some of these things could be improved upon. At least I think so."

Anti-war bills delayed until Nixon ends summit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate action on antiwar legislation was delayed Wednesday under a tacit understanding that further votes would be postponed until President Nixon completes his summit meeting in Moscow.

Doves publicly were vowing to press ahead on the issue until it is resolved, but privately leaders on both sides of the antiwar question, except for a few diehards, had an informal, gentlemen's agreement that nothing more will be done until next month.

Senate Republican Leader

Hugh Scott predicted there would be no further votes until the President returns, and sources close to the Senate leadership said he probably was right.

The antiwar bloc was heartened by the closeness of Tuesday's 47-43 vote that nullified an amendment by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., to cut off funds for the war.

The doves feel they will have an even chance to reverse the decision in a later vote, although they are certain of defeat while Nixon is preparing for the summit meeting. Several senators who sided with the administration Tuesday did so because they felt an end-the-war vote would seriously weaken the President's hand and might even cause him to cancel the summit.

Once that meeting is over, assuming there is still no end in sight to the war, swing votes such as those of Sens. William Spong, D-Va., John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., George Aiken, R-Vt., and even Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., may feel free to join in support of an amendment by Senate Democratic Leader

Mike Mansfield. The Mansfield amendment would cut off funds for U.S. ground forces in Vietnam by Aug. 31 and force a total end to U.S. military involvement in Indochina if the Communists will release prisoners of war and cease firing on American troops.

Mansfield's formula is even tougher than the Case-Church measure that it would replace and it probably will be softened.

One fallback possibility being discussed is to force withdrawal of all ground troops by Aug. 31 but permit continued air strikes and military aid until there is an internationally supervised cease-fire throughout Indochina. As it is written now, the Mansfield proposal would require a virtual American abandonment of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam if North Vietnam releases prisoners and agrees not to fire on U.S. troops as they depart.

Senate leaders discussed the possibility of moving to set aside the issue for two weeks, but decided against it because it would open them up to protests from student antiwar lobbyists who are swarming the Capitol urging that all business be set aside to resolve the war issue.

What is expected to happen, instead, is that administration backers will go through the motions of a filibuster and doves will make only a token effort to crack it.

Scales to quit party post

HARRISBURG (UPI)—John N. Scales said Wednesday he has decided to step down quietly as chairman of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania.

Scales, whom Gov. Milton J. Shapp has been trying to oust since last year, wrote a letter to Democratic committeemen announcing that he will not seek re-election.

He summoned the 200 newly-elected committeemen to a re-organization meeting in Harrisburg, May 25, to elect a new chairman. Shapp's hand-picked candidate, Harvey Thiemann, 28, appears to be the frontrunner for that job.

Scales also said that he will disclose the results of an audit of Democratic State Committee books at the meeting. Asked about the audit, he said: "I think I should save my comments for the meeting."

Scales called a similar meeting last January to tender his resignation. But he changed his mind after reading news reports that the state committee had lost about $300,000 in a maze of bad bookkeeping.

During the January meeting, Scales accused Shapp of milking the state committee treasury. He said he would not step down until an audit of the books was completed.

Scales, who serves as district attorney in Westmoreland County, said he has decided to concentrate his efforts on his campaign for the state Senate in November.

Special liquor use law signed

HARRISBURG (UPI)—A bill permitting churches, synagogues, hospitals and volunteer fire companies to serve liquor at fund raising events has been signed into law by Gov. Milton J. Shapp.

Each organization or institution is permitted to obtain one special liquor permit per year. The permits are valid for three days each.

According to the law, the state permits can be issued for use at a special event including, but not limited to bazaars, picnics, and clam-bakes.

The special event must be used for raising funds.

8 Soviet warships cruise 200 miles off Viet coast

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eight Soviet warships, under close American surveillance, have assembled 200 miles off the Vietnamese coast, but have shown no signs of challenging U.S. vessels or the mines in North Vietnamese harbors, Pentagon sources said Wednesday.

"They haven't given any indication of what they are going to do," said one source. "They could just be engaged in a muscle flexing exercise, sitting out there to let the United States know that the Soviet Union also has a powerful fleet."

The vessels, 200 miles from the port of Da Nang in South Vietnam and 300 miles from the North Vietnamese coast, are being watched by airmen from four U.S. aircraft carriers at Yankee Station, about 50 miles east of Da Nang in the Tonkin Gulf. The carriers are part of a flotilla of about 55 U.S. ships deployed off the coasts of North and South Vietnam.

Sources said the Russian vessels included five destroyers, a diesel-powered submarine, an oil tanker and a guided missile cruiser. No minesweepers were sighted.

The submarine, two of the destroyers and the tanker stopped at the anchorage, used frequently by Soviet Pacific fleet to resupply ships at sea, before President Nixon announced May 8 that the United States was mining the entrances to seven North Vietnamese harbors.

Sources said that no minesweepers had been seen in the area nor were any Soviet minesweepers known to be heading toward Vietnam.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim would not confirm the presence of the Soviet ships, but told reporters, "We wouldn't be surprised if there were Soviet naval vessels in the South China Sea."

Friedheim also said that "several" more of the 25 merchant ships believed headed toward the mined harbor of Haiphong had turned back. "Our best estimate now is that roughly two-thirds of the Communist bloc ships have diverted," he said.

This would leave about eight ships which conceivably could still be destined for Haiphong,

Bremer's brother faces 11 charges of fraud

MIAMI (UPI)—Authorities have identified a man wanted here for bilking 600 portly housewives as the brother of Arthur Herman Bremer of Milwaukee, who is accused of shooting Alabama Gov. George Wallace at Laurel, Md., Monday.

Officers said William Allen Bremer, 32, was free on $2,500 bond at his home at Greenwood, Ark., pending a hearing on extradition to Florida May 30 at nearby Fort Smith, Ark.

Authorities at Fort Smith identified the suspect as Bremer's brother and the identification was confirmed by another brother, Theodore, of Milwaukee, who told newsmen there, "When it rains, it really rains hard."

William Bremer is charged here with setting up three weight reduction salons in Miami, signing up 600 women for reducing programs at $38 each and then leaving town.

The women said when they showed up at the parlors March 14, the doors were locked and the equipment inside was gone.

Joseph Nazzaro, assistant state attorney, said more than 100 charges of fraud and one of grand larceny had been filed against William Bremer.

Treaty ratified by W. Germany

BONN (UPI)—The West German Parliament ratified Chancellor Willy Brandt's controversial nonaggression pacts with the Soviet Union and Poland Wednesday.

The treaties, basis of Brandt's Nobel Peace Prize award in 1971, recognize as permanent the national borders drawn in Europe after World War II.

Both documents still face routine approval by the upper house of the Parliament. Passage is assured because Brandt's political opposition said it would not use its majority membership there to block the treaties if they passed in the lower house.

The opposition Christian Democrats' leaders at the last minute abandoned attempts to swing the party to support the pacts and suggested abstention as a compromise on the vote Wednesday in order to preserve party unity.

As a result, the treaty with the Soviet Union was approved 240 to 10 with 238 abstentions.

The treaty with Poland was approved 243 to 17 with 230 abstentions.

The opposing votes came from Christian Democratic conservatives and leaders of organizations representing Germans expelled from their homes by the Russians and the Poles from 1945 to 1949.

The treaties, which Brandt signed 18 months ago, gave up German claims on territory occupied by Poland and the Soviet Union after the war as well as pledging nonaggression and recognition of current national boundaries in Europe.

The main points of disagreement were the surrender of all claims to the former German territory lost in World War II and the apparent end of chances for Germany's eventual peaceful reunification.

Ratification of the treaties, among other things, cleared the road for preparatory talks on a European security conference between the nations of Eastern and Western Europe and the United States.

EDCNP seeks participation

HARRISBURG — The Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania announced today that testimony was presented by the Council's Executive Director, Howard J. Grossman, at a meeting of the House Resolution 109 Select House Committee at the House Majority Caucus Room in Harrisburg.

The Select House Committee's task includes the examination of the federal, state and local grant-in-aid system and the possible need for increased state assistance considerably beyond what is being done now. The House resolution called for an investigation of the current grant-in-aid system and testimony has been taken by the Committee from a variety of specialists and experts in grants-in-aid.

The resolution states in part that "Although Pennsylvania has done well, compared to some other states, Pennsylvania's cities and municipalities would probably be able to participate to a much larger extent in federal programs if the state expanded its technical and financial assistance to local governments."

Grossman emphasized the utilization of regional agencies to provide technical assistance to local governments in as much as many of these governments "cannot afford to employ full-time staff personnel to provide this type of technical assistance. What is needed is state or federal aid to enable these agencies to expand their technical assistance to all state and federal programs, not just the Appalachian program or the Economic Development Administration program."

He went on to say that "There may be a need for new state legislation similar to the Appalachian regional development legislation which could provide for broad based supplemental grants at the state level for a variety of programs over and above the current state system of grants-in-aid."

The Select Committee is to report its findings and recommendations to the Pennsylvania House of Representatives in the near future. Chairman of the Committee is Robert Wise of Williamsport; Representative Ustynski of Hazleton serves on the 15-member Committee.

Pen Argyl art show scheduled

PEN ARGYL — The Pen Argyl Junior-Senior High School will hold their annual Art Festival in the senior high school gymnasium from 7 to 9 p.m., today.

The art department, home economics department and the industrial arts department will place seventh to twelfth grade students' projects on display.

In addition to the projects, a program of student art slides will be presented. Demonstrations of macrame, pottery, rug weaving, figure drawing, body painting and mechanical drawing will also be presented.

Daniel Caesar and Leslie Doney, both seniors, will each present one of their paintings to be hung in the school's permanent art exhibit.

Entertainment and music will be provided by the Pen Argyl High School Band.

Bee swarm watchers warned

GILBERT — The Cooperative Extensive Service of Monroe County says now is the time of year to look out for swarming bees.

Each year, as the honey bee colonies prepare to increase their numbers by dividing, they "swarm" out of their old hive with their old queen and look for a spot to start a new colony.

The service says that normally honey swarms are not aggressive and will not sting unless they are disturbed. If however, the bees are forced to remain clustered for a long period of time because of bad weather, they are more prone to sting.

When the bees leave their old hive, they load up on honey and usually cluster together on a tree or shrub from several hours to several days before they decide to "move in" permanently in a hollow tree, a house, or an empty box.

Attempts to drive away the bees may only cause them to stay longer; the service advises that residents not disturb the swarm at all.

Several beekeepers in the West End will come and remove a swarm free of charge if the resident so desires. If help is needed to locate a beekeeper, the Extension Service Office can provide residents with helpful information.

Bangor area schools need faculty members

BANGOR — More teachers will be needed for the 1972-73 school year in the Bangor Area School District, the school board has announced.

The board authorized administrators to seek applicants to teach biology, elementary reading, combined physical education and science and combined English and reading for the junior high school.

Board member John Korabaugh, Jr., recommended the board consider, "in the near future" hiring an assistant to business manager Merle Mabius to handle transportation matters. No action was taken.

In staff appointments, the board named Dorothy Ruggiero as teaching principal at the Columbus Elementary School; Earl Lutz, assistant high school principal and home and school visitor and Mary Anne Catino as multi-media specialist in the library.

Resignations were accepted from Roger Berger, vocational-agricultural teacher; Mrs. Deborah Williams, physical education teacher and Mrs. Mabel Keiper, who is retiring at the end of the term as a third

Arbitrary no-fault Jaycees predicted for Pa.

KRESGEVILLE — Pennsylvania will have no-fault automobile insurance "within the year," but the legislation "will undoubtedly be a compromise" because of "high emotions and political implications."

This was the prediction made by William F. Ihrie, Jr. service office manager in Allentown for Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies, before a meeting of senior citizens of Kresgeville to which the entire community was invited. The meeting was held in the Polk Township Volunteer Fire Company building.

Ihrie, a chartered property and casualty underwriter, warned against compromise approaches that superimpose additional first-party, no-fault coverages on top of the "inefficiency and waste" of the present tort liability system.

"If such an approach were followed in Pennsylvania, motorists could end up paying more for their automobile insurance than they do today," he said. "This is what happened to motorists in Oregon, South Dakota and Delaware."

Any plans that purports to be real no-fault, Ihrie said, should include these basic features:

—All motorists should have insurance so that everyone who is injured in an accident will be paid by his own insurance company regardless of fault.

—Hospital, medical, rehabilitation, wage loss and other economic loss benefits should be available in high limits so that the seriously injured will be assured adequate compensation.

—Insurance companies should be required to make prompt payments, monthly as the bills come in.

—Faultfinding and lawsuits should be eliminated in less serious cases.

"A no-fault plan that includes these features could reduce insurance costs by as much as 15 to 20 percent," Ihrie said, pointing out that his company, a leading property and casualty insurance group that wrote nearly $300 million worth of automobile insurance in 1971, has publicly supported no-fault since 1968.

"No-fault is not a panacea," he said. "It is not the answer to all the problems of the automobile. There must also be improvement in driver skills and licensing, law enforcement, safer highways, and sturdier cars that will better protect their occupants and cost less to repair."

"The auto accident compensation system must be improved. And it must be true reform, not the bogus proposals of those whose real aim is to preserve the lawsuit system."

Pocono maintenance shed cited for safety

WHITE HAVEN — The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission's four operating facilities and 142 of its employees were recognized by Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association Insurance Company for safety achievement at a safety meeting.

Two facilities, Burnt Cabins and Slatington Maintenance Sheds, will receive the "PMA Performance Award" for operating 199,454 and 196,823 man hours without a disabling injury from January 1, 1970 to December 31, 1971.

The Administration Building of the Turnpike Commission and the Pocono Maintenance Shed will receive similar awards for 499,200 and 135,998 man hours respectively, covering the period January 1, 1971 to December 31, 1971.

In addition, the Commissioners each year recognize the District with the best overall safety performance, and District 5 has been named the 1971 winner.

Jerry Fritzen, PMA loss prevention consultant, will present individual "PMA Safe Driver Awards" to 14 drivers who have achieved accident-free driving records. Four year awards go to 107 men, 3 year awards to 6 men, 2 year awards to 5 men, and 1 year awards to 24 men. A total of 489 driving years without a chargeable accident is represented.

Fritzen will also present the "PMA Performance Awards" to representatives of the winning facilities of the turnpike operation.

Scout fete scheduled

PARADISE VALLEY — Mountain Neighborhood Girl Scouts will have an "Outdoor Day" in celebration of their 60th anniversary from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Paradise ball field, Paradise Valley.

In the event of rain, the activity will be held Sunday.

Jaycees honored at confab

HARRISBURG — The Western Pocono Jaycees earned six awards in the records and recognition competition for population division number one at the Jaycee state convention.

The local chapter was awarded a second place under public relations and third place prizes in the following categories: chapter management, individual development, ways and means, community involvement, youth assistance and governmental.

The organization also received a certificate of merit for the Faith in God program and a certificate commemorating their winning the Region 12 Parade of Chapter points.

Elmer Myers from Du Bois was elected state president at the conclave. Robert New of the Phoenixville Chapter was elected first vice-president, Dick Raudabough from Carlisle Chapter was elected second vice-president.

The following members from the local chapter were present: President H. Lee Everett, External Vice President Lyle Nicholas, Treasurer Larry Krome, past president Eugene Meekes, Chapter Director, Gary Shupp, Parliamentarian Donald Boring and Records and Recognition Chairman Robert Coleman.

Members Richard Snyder, Larry Johnson, Peter Lambert, Secretary Daniel Andrews and Ray Knecht also attended.

NCACC grants okayed

BETHLEHEM — Northampton County Area Community College has been notified by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that two grant applications have been approved under Title III of the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963.

The two grants awarded total $9,916 annually for a period of sixteen and one-half years.

The grant is to be used toward payment of interest costs incurred as a result of the soon-to-be constructed West division centers. In December, the federal government awarded the college $250,202 to be used towards construction of the centers. The total savings to be realized from the annual interest subsidy, now approved by the federal government, will mean a savings of $163,614 to the sponsoring school districts.

Ground is expected to be broken for the two new division centers by September.

Burning-landfill deserves scrutiny

So recycling is too expensive for Monroe County. Well, that sort of cuts down on the alternatives left to the county for disposal of solid waste, doesn't it?

Recycling has been highly touted by environmentalist groups as a panacea for our waste disposal problems, and on the surface, it does have several arguments in its favor. For one, recycling takes what otherwise would be buried or burned and converts it to usable material. What would be discarded is put to use in our revolving economy, lessening our demands on our ever-dwindling natural resources.

For another, recycling reduces an area's solid wastes to a minimal amount easier to dispose of, thus taking less of the area's financial and geographic resources for final disposition of the residue.

But, as pointed out in the report of those who visited the Franklin, Ohio recycling plant, it takes a great deal of refuse to make recycling feasible, if not profitable. So we find ourselves in the ironic position of not having enough solid waste to make the most efficient means of waste disposal feasible.

That leaves us with two alternatives: landfill and incineration. The division isn't that easy or absolute. Incineration reduces the amount of waste, but that reduced amount must still be disposed of, and landfill is needed to do that; either landfill or an open dump... and there are many valid objections to an open dump, ranging from the esthetic to the hygienic.

Pure landfill, in this country, is insupportable, according to soil experts who have investigated the country and found that soil conditions rule out massive landfill in many areas of the county. Landfill takes too great a toll of land resources, and we are short of such resources. Sure, we have plenty of swampland, but much of that is needed to preserve the wildlife and wilderness aspects of Monroe County that make it attractive as a resort and sporting area.

From here, it looks as though a combination of incineration and landfill is, at present, the best answer to our solid waste disposal problem. Transportation is an obstacle, but we are going to have to reconcile ourselves to some expense, after all. We can no longer expect to simply throw our trash out the window and not also expect to have it lump up into a disastrous debacle (not to mention an unsightly mess).

Incineration, if its emissions are properly controlled, would reduce the amount of solid waste to a level that our limited landfill resources could absorb. Also to be considered is the fact that incineration reduces waste to at best biodegradable matter, at worst, inert matter. Either way, we are assuring ourselves that we won't be left with a permanent lump just under the ground, a lump that will fester and grow into a cancerous element in our midst.

There is room for study, of course. But there is little time left. We suggest it might be well for county officials and the county's Planning Commission to look keenly at the concept of incineration-landfill. Our volume of trash isn't going to diminish, but the period of grace allowed us to come to grips with the waste disposal problem will.

Another Vietnam price

We doubt if there has been an issue in modern times to rival that of the Vietnam conflict in duration, acrimony and divisive potential within the United States.

For awhile there, it seemed as though the war as an issue was dying out. The massive protests of the Johnson and early Nixon years had vanished as a domestic phenomenon and the war's potential as an election year issue dwindled with each successive troop reduction.

Then came the massive bombing of the North, followed by the mining and blockading of North Vietnamese ports. The protests mounted. They are not yet at the peak hit in 1968 and during the Cambodian incursion of 1970, but they are getting there.

It is still primarily youth fighting the President on Vietnam. These are not the same youth who took to the streets and rocked the campuses two and four years ago, but their younger sisters and brothers. And they are just as adamant about our getting out of Vietnam as their older siblings were.

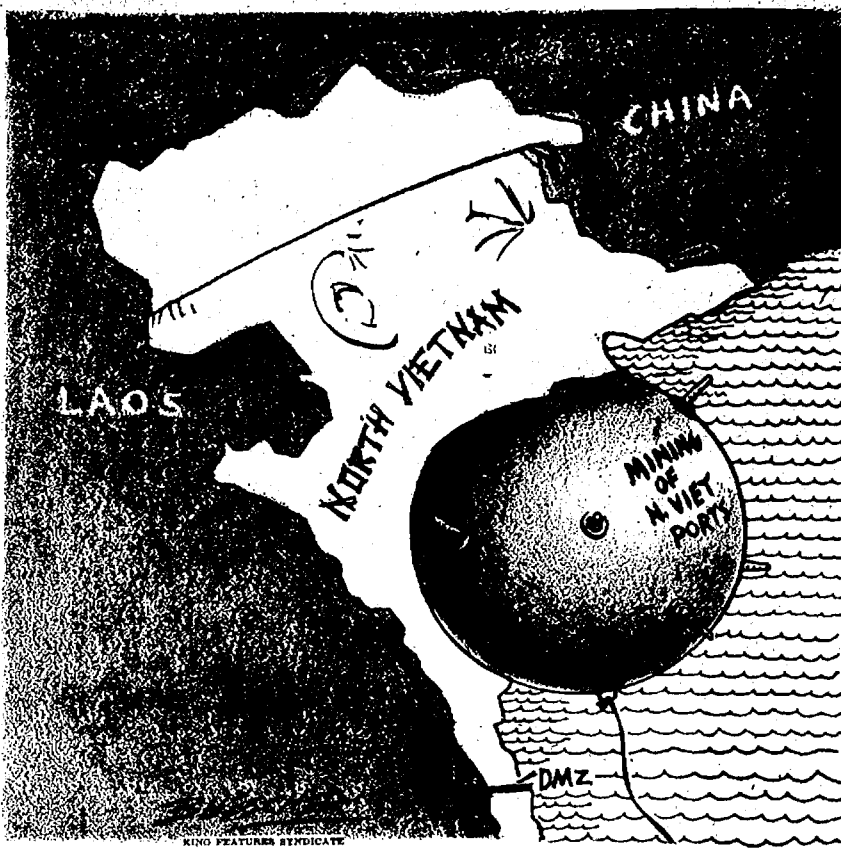

This is the other risk the President ran when he decided to run the primary risk of a confrontation with Russia. While the latter risk entails possible all-out war and unimaginable destruction, the former holds just as serious a consequence in terms of domestic tranquility and the status quo.

The Pennsylvania Story

Election central

HARRISBURG — With the Pennsylvania primary campaign and election month out of the way, concentration now of course centers around the upcoming fall general election — but with all this goes one headache in particular in this presidential election year 1972.

Fundamentally this revolves around the question of finding the tremendous sums of money necessary to underwrite such a campaign.

For the record it should be noted that neither major party in the Keystone State is contemplating filing bankruptcy proceedings.

Both Democrats and Republicans are quakingly solvent. Both at this point enjoy modest wren eggs — to cover normal operational procedures. Neither has had a fight with the sheriff of late.

However this isn't quite the point. Twice in every four-year span state headquarters of both parties are pressed quite heavily on the financial front — one being the quadrennial race for the governorship, the other the quadrennial race for the presidency.

The former is out of the way. This year it's the presidential-legislative scramble that will be gnawing at the rusty hinges of the bank vaults of both parties.

More so in recent years than ever before Pennsylvania — big sprawling, populous, industrial and vote-heavy Pennsylvania — has become an enticing plum in presidential strategy computation. This is because the state has become almost a tossup in which way it might tip.

Only a comparatively few years ago there was no question — it almost invariably teetered in favor of a Republican sweep.

The advent and rise of Keystone State donkey riders a decade and a half ago changed this staid pattern, reducing any great "sweep" to the proportions of a dusting operation that could swing either way.

In years gone by when Democrats were so far down the minority pole there was serious question as to whether they were even there, they couldn't muster enough money to contribute to the race for sweeper of the village curbs.

Thus opposition Republicans had little need to worry or spend great sums in the Keystone State; the Commonwealth swung in to the Republican column anyway.

That was the status up to a comparatively few years ago; a status that changed somewhat abruptly and dramatically with the coming of (surprised) Democratic rule in 1955.

Democrats built

It was during this period that Democrats built up party offers in fetching fashion; in fact they far outshone their then near-bankrupt GOP counterparts who were busy wallowing in the depressing mire of defeat and minority party status for once.

By the time the 1961 gubernatorial election rolled around, Keystone State Republicans were just about "kaput" financially; Democrats on the other hand were riding the financial rocket "a-okay."

With the Republican Scantonian sweep of 1962, affairs fiscal for the elephant riders changed drastically as once again as the ruling party, their coffers began to fill.

The whole thing has switched once again, and with Democrats now in the throne room, they are faced with replenishing their fiscal pot.

In essence though, extra funds will have to be raised by both parties in this presidential campaign year 1972 if either hopes to produce on the Keystone State front.

Drummond Roundup

McGovern's dilemma

WASHINGTON — Sen. George McGovern is still "a fer piece" from clinching the Democratic presidential nomination.

He has gone just about as far as he can as the candidate farthest to the left. He must broaden his appeal by moving somewhat back from the extreme left if he is to win the necessary 1,509 votes at the convention and, if nominated, have any good chance of defeating President Nixon.

Here is McGovern's dilemma and he knows that it is a difficult — even a dangerous — dilemma however he resolves it.

He has to mute some of his extreme-left positions if he is to avoid appearing to be the Goldwater of the Democratic Party; that is, a sure loser.

However well he does in the remaining primaries, he can't continue to run substantially behind Sen. Hubert Humphrey in the polls reflecting the choice of Democratic voters and in trial heats against the President and expect to get the nomination.

He must escape the image he has thus far created for himself — that of being the Democrat farthest to the left on nearly every issue — in order to widen his constituency sufficiently to show that he could defeat Nixon.

He knows this is true and he showed in his Nebraska primary campaign that he wants to edge nearer the political center.

But there is the other horn of Sen. McGovern's dilemma. If he tries to waffle himself away from his position as the candidate farthest to the left, he runs the perilous risk of alienating his own natural constituency, which has brought him as far as he has already come — and that's quite a long way.

This constituency embraces the affluent left, the activist young and the anti-Establishment protesters who are dividing their support between McGovern and George Wallace.

McGovern's constituency wouldn't like it one bit if he moved very far back from what they want their man to stand for. Furthermore, McGovern does not have complete freedom to move back and forth on controversial issues. He is bound by past commitments, by firmly avowed convictions and by those who first rallied to his candidacy and now want him to remain true to their image of him.

McGovern is bound more than many to his past commitments and convictions because from the beginning he created for himself the picture of the one candidate above others who was going to think and say what he believed right whether it got him the nomination or not.

He is already taking two steps to alter his extremist image. Not long ago he was condemning the very concept and merit of the political center. He was arguing that no Democrat at the political center could win or would deserve to win. Now McGovern has begun to talk about a "new" political center and to suggest that there is a new center. Guess who? Himself — Candidate McGovern.

He is also, as in Nebraska, contending that his views on a number of issues like abortion, amnesty, marijuana, busing and aid to parochial schools (which he used to call unconstitutional) have been misunderstood. Thus he is beginning to change his stance somewhat without quite admitting it.

There is little doubt that Sen. McGovern will hold to most of his basic positions. He will shift emphasis and round off a few sharp edges. He is hoping that his don't-back-on-anything constituency will tolerate his shifting on issues enough to get himself nominated.

One political scenario suggests that while McGovern might be able to get the Democratic nomination as the candidate farthest to the left, he then couldn't possibly win the election.

Parochial school aid legal?

Editor, The Record:
Your editorial of April 11 and the letters of Monsignor Purcell and Mr. Mark prompted me to do some research. I would like to offer a few comments.

In the Constitution, with all of its amendments, the word "religion" is mentioned but once; "education" not at all. It would seem that the authors were not that concerned with the subjects.

The entire phrase pertaining to religion is, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." While financial aid to religious schools would be, quite indirectly, respecting several religions, conversely, refusing aid with the probable results, would just as indirectly prohibit the exercising of those religions.

Many historians have agreed that the writers of our Constitution were quite clear and concise on important topics of federal concern and rather vague on other subjects, thereby retaining as much power as feasible for the individual states.

Education in the United States has always been a state responsibility. The Pennsylvania state act giving financial aid for tuition to parents of non-public school children may be illegal because it discriminates against public school and non-tuition paying parents. The logic that it supports some religions could be also applied to the practice of sending relief packages to families in non-friendly countries as supporting our enemies.

The objection to another alternative, dropping the religious course from these schools, seems ridiculous. Would these schools be teaching public school children, or would they in fact be teaching the same pupils they now teach?

Since when has an open belief in God and hope in man been considered a contagious disease to be avoided? Also, what percentage of our public school teachers are of one religious faith or another? I'm sure many of them are as strong in their beliefs as the teachers in religious schools.

Almost every year our school taxes rise, not only because of the high cost involved in maintaining the schools, we are told, but also because there are so many more each year to be taught. Over-crowding results in lowering the quality of education and no one wants that, so we pay it.

Regardless of whether we use the schools or not, single or retired, one child or 10, we all pay the same proportion of our worth. Wouldn't an additional nominal education charge per child per year be more fair to all our citizens? We are educating the future of our country, which is a combination of all religions and no religion.

When the objections to educational financial aid are voiced on the grounds of religion, the mental wince felt by the Jew, the Catholic, the Seventh Day Adventist and the others is the same.

Eventually our legislators will reach a compromise, as they usually have done in the past. I hope it will be a quick and just compromise for all. I, for one, am in favor of state aid for all schools that need it to exist.

Nixon right on abortion

Editor, The Record:

I think that President Nixon made a wise decision when he endorsed repeal of the New York State abortion law and deserves credit for his part and present stand against easy abortion law.

There are some people who think that anyone who opposes easy abortion-on-demand laws has no right to do so because they are then imposing their religious beliefs on others. (Therefore no one has a right to speak out for protection for unborn, unprotected human life.)

It never seems to occur to pro-abortion people that they are imposing their beliefs and error-filled conclusions on unborn human life to such an extent that they see nothing wrong in ending that life.

Merry-go-round

WASHINGTON — The FBI is conducting systematic surveillance of black leaders, who are guilty of nothing more serious than excessive political rhetoric.

Millions of dollars have been invested in the FBI's investigation of "racial matters." But our study of the secret files indicates that the investigation has been heavily one-sided. Only the most extreme white racists have come under FBI scrutiny, but almost every prominent black leader in the country has an FBI dossier in his name. Even congressmen and Nixon-Agnew supporters, if they're black, are regarded with suspicion by the FBI.

The list of black "subversives" includes such apostles of non-violence as the late Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., his wife, Coretta Scott King; the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy; Jesse Jackson, the handsome young "country preacher" who recently started a self-help group in Chicago; Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP); and Bayard Rustin, director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute.

The FBI has even zeroed in on President Nixon's most articulate black supporter, former CORE director Floyd McKissick, Jr., whose political activities have been chronicled by the FBI in a fat file.

Now director of the new town of "Soul City," N.C., McKissick made headlines when he lambasted the Democratic party for failing to deliver "on its promises." The Nixon Administration, he said, has offered more than "just the rhetoric."

Like many a white politician, McKissick has jumped the political fence. For two years earlier, he had called Nixon "one of the nation's leading proponents of 'Law and Order' — Fascist Style." McKissick's words were duly deposited in his bulging FBI dossier.

Another entry, dated January 13, 1970, is stamped "Secret — No Foreign Dissemination." One of the deep, dark secrets noted by FBI agent Thomas L. Beckwith was that McKissick "has made several speeches throughout the U.S. during 1969 wherein he advocated black capitalism."

But far more grievous, McKissick, "in one speech stated the Black Panther Party should be supported."

FBI agents were also listening when McKissick at a black bash in Brooklyn commented unfavorably on the fact that this affair was held in a church, since churches are among groups infiltrated by the FBI and Central Intelligence Agency which hold the blacks down.

The federal sleuths have also been poking their noses into McKissick's financial affairs. States one entry:

Floyd McKissick, it was learned, had recently received Check Number 2666 made out in his name and drawn against the account of the Louis M. Rabinowitz Foundation, Incorporated, in the amount of $2,500. This check was subsequently deposited to McKissick's account in the Freedom National Bank, Harlem, New York.

A footnote warned that "the above information is not to be made public without the

For some strange reason this thinking has become so clouded that they are unable to accept proven medical facts including the fact that a woman who has a legal or illegal abortion is in much more danger of losing her life than a woman who has the baby.

issuance of a subpoena duces tecum, directed to Mr. Henry P. Skelton, Vice-President, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company, 40 East 42nd Street, New York, New York. My associate Joseph Spear attempted in vain to get a comment from bank officials.

Coretta King's finances
The FBI has also been prying into Coretta Scott King's finances. When a documentary film about her late husband was appearing around the country, the top cops were busy counting receipts.

The movie's first run, says a confidential memo dated August 5, 1970, "resulted in receipts in excess of $2,000,000. By arrangements made prior to March 24, 1970, by Coretta Scott King and officials of the SCLC, the receipts for this movie were to be divided equally between King and the SCLC."

The finances of Roy Innis, successor to Floye McKissick as chairman of CORE, have been meticulously catalogued, too. And Innis's file notes ominously that he has "attended marches to protest against the war in Vietnam...."

Ralph David Abernathy, successor to the martyred Dr. King, rates a file that would choke a hippopotamus. The FBI's investigators seem most intrigued over his troubles with his colleagues.

An FBI informant reported on March 6, 1970, for example, that one colleague, Hosea Williams, "remarked to some associates he was rather concerned as to the cool and noticeably distant attitude recently displayed by Abernathy."

Black artists, entertainers and sports figures, who speak up for their race, are also suspect.

Farmers won't support milk control bill

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp has failed to woo rural support for his plan to abolish milk price controls in Pennsylvania.

The administration made several major changes in its proposed bill — all of them designed to win rural support.

But farmers groups and rural legislators said the changes were not enough to force them to support the bill.

The changes include stiffer penalties for violators, new packaging regulations and increased powers for the Milk Marketing Board to regulate testing and bonding.

There will be no more changes, according to an administration spokesman. The bill has been printed and presented to legislative leaders.

The spokesman promised it would be introduced in the House next week — a promise that has been repeated many times during the past few months of haggling with rural factions. The most controversial provision of the bill was not changed — the provision which ends retail price fixing by the Milk Marketing Board.

In place of price fixing, the bill forbids dairies from selling milk at cost or below and requires all retail stores to charge a markup of at least 5 per cent.

20 cent drop

The administration figures consumers would save between $80 million and $90 million a year in Pennsylvania if the bill became law. Prices would drop an estimated 20 cents a gallon, a spokesman said.

One of the chief opponents of this idea, Rep. Brady Hetrick, D - Mifflin, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said there is only a "faint possibility" the bill would ever be released from his committee.

"I don't like it," he said. "Most of my committee members prefer the law the way it is. If any bill is passed it probably would be one we wrote ourselves."

Hetrick said he and several other rural legislators were called into the governor's office last week to discuss the bill. They told Shapp's aide, Norval Reese, they did not want to abolish milk price setting.

"Like the ribbon" Reese said the rural lawmakers liked all of the provisions that were added to attract rural votes. "They liked the ribbon," he said, "but not the package."

The biggest new change in the bill would drastically increase the penalties against dealers and stores that violate the law.

The penalty for a first offense would be upped from a maximum of $25 and 30 days in jail to $500 and 30 days in jail. A second offense would be a misdemeanor with a maximum penalty of a $1,000 fine and one year in jail.

Other fines would be levied on a sliding scale based on the cost of a dealer's license. The maximum would be $15,000 and one year in jail.

The Milk Marketing Board also would be given exclusive power to lift a license of a firm with many minor offenses. Under present law, a minor offender can choose whether it wants to pay a fine or give up its license.

Any injured farmer, dairy, store or consumer would have the power to take the violator to court to win an injunction or damages. He would be entitled to claim triple damages, court costs and attorney's fees.

Asked why these penalties were stiffened, James Connors, author of the bill, replied: "This was the biggest criticism of the industry. They asked how are you going to enforce it. This makes it easily enforceable."

He said these penalties were particularly important to enforce the so-called "anti-trust" portion of the bill; which forbids a dealer from intentionally selling milk at a lower price or offering incentives to undercut another dealer.

The new packaging provision would require all bottles of milk to carry a "boldly conspicuous" label listing the butterfat content, where the milk was produced and where it was processed.

"This way," Connors said, "they can advertise 100 per cent Pennsylvania milk. It's designed to help the farm groups and the Teamsters who want to support Pennsylvania milk."

"It will also help those who complain about poor quality milk coming across the border from Ohio."

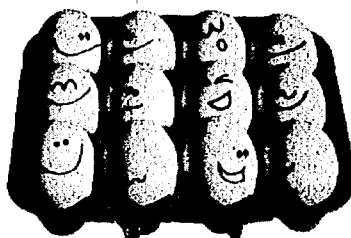

Another change would give the board the right to decide how Pennsylvania milk is tested. The tests, now prescribed by law, determine how much a farmer will be paid.

Connors said the board could even decide to abandon state testing in lieu of the federal tests.

The Milk Marketing Board now sets minimum retail prices based on information collected at public hearings.

HENNY PENNY EGG COOKERY

Soft Cooked . . . Cover eggs in a sauce pan with water. Heat to boiling. Remove from heat, cover tightly, let stand 3-5 minutes. Cool in water for a second or two for easier handling.

Hard Cooked . . . Simmer eggs for 20 minutes. Cool immediately in cold running water and peel. (This is the time you can most easily peel a hard cooked, fresh, very high quality egg.)

Poached . . . . . Put about 2" of liquid — water, milk, broth — in a shallow pan. Bring to boil, then reduce heat to simmer. Break eggs into a dish. Slip into liquid. Cook 3-5 minutes, remove using a slotted spoon to drain.

Fried . . . . . Grease skillet lightly, add eggs, cook just till edges turn white (1 min.). Add ½ teaspoon of water per egg. Cover tightly so steam bastes eggs and cook 2-3 minutes.

Scrambled . . . Mix eggs with milk or cream (about 2 tablespoons per egg), salt and pepper. Put in greased skillet or double boiler. Cook slowly, stirring constantly, over medium heat.

USE HENNY PENNY Grade A Eggs and Taste the Difference!

Available at most independent quality markets in The Poconos.

HENNY PENNY Grade A Cartoned EGGS
Available for Stores, Restaurants, Hotels, and Diners.

UMW agrees to new election

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Mine Workers (UMW) has agreed to most requests sought by the Labor Department in conducting a new international election this year, but balked at including long-time Secretary-Treasurer John Owens in the election.

In an answer filed late Tuesday with U. S. District Court Judge William B. Bryant, who threw out the UMW's 1969 election, the union agreed to void both the re-elections of President W. A. (Tony) Boyle and Vice President George J. Titler.

Jury revises charge

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A federal grand jury Wednesday returned a superceding indictment in connection with its investigation in a case involving Maurice Osser, commissioner of the city board of elections.

The new indictment returned to U.S. District Court Judge Raymond J. Broderick left tact a charge made by the grand jury last February that Osser, 62, extorted $101,000 from the Shoup Voting Machine Corp. between 1967 and 1970.

The original conspiracy count of February involved Osser, a late city commissioner Thomas P. McHenry, the Shoup firm and the AVM Corp.

The superceding indictment reduced the figure to $235,000 and added the former Dunlap Printing Co. of Philadelphia to the list of alleged conspirators.

The revised indictment came a few hours after another federal judge, Daniel H. Huyette III, took under advisement pre-trial motions by Osser's attorney, F. Lee Bailey.

Bailey contended the government was guilty of "flagrant and horrendous bribery" of Irving H. Meyers, of Bala Cynwyd, Pa., former Shoup president.

Angela Davis defense to open case today

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — The defense opens its case in the Angela Davis trial today after 11 weeks of prosecution testimony with the major question being whether Miss Davis will take the stand herself.

The 28-year-old former UCLA instructor is charged with helping to plot and carry out an abortive attempt to kidnap a judge and court officials 17 months ago. Four persons, including the judge, were killed in the attempt.

Attorneys for Miss Davis declined to identify their first witness. There was speculation that the defendant herself might take the stand.

Presumably she would be asked to give an account of her activities before and after the shooting incident. Witnesses for the state have testified she was with Jonathan Jackson near the Marin County Civic Center the day before the bloodshed.

Miss Davis has also been identified as the person who bought the weapons.

Wildflower Preserve hostesses

STROUDSBURG — Four members of the Monroe County Garden Club took their turn as hostesses at the Bowman's Hill State Wildflower Preserve in Washington Crossing State Park on May 10. Mrs. Elwood Grant, Mrs. Elmer Christine, Mrs. Clement Price and Mrs. William H. Savitz.

They welcomed visitors from Scotland, England, France, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Mrs. Grant guided several groups on the trails where they saw blooming blue-eyed Mary, trilliums, Virginia bluebells, purple larkspur, blue and pink phlox, wild columbine, spring beauty and fire pink plus the flowering spring trees.

When not busy with their hostess duties, the women raked and cleaned the Poconos Laurel Trail where the oldest mountain laurel was in bud and the native chestnut trees still growing with only one suffering from fungi blight.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hodgdon (Rod MacLeod)

Miss Linda Mae Kipa weds in Tobyhanna

TOBYHANNA — Miss Linda Mae Kipa and Thomas John Hodgdon were married on May 13 at 2 p.m. in the Tobyhanna United Methodist Church with Rev. Clyde W. Sholtzberger officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Kipa of Tobyhanna R.D. 1. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jean Hodgdon of Star Route, Sciota, and the late Ellsworth Hodgdon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full gown of tulle and tiers of lace, with high neckline and long sleeves. Her headpiece of re-embroidered Venice lace was trimmed with pearls and a lace bow. She carried a hand bouquet of sweetheart roses, daisies and white carnations.

Barbara Allen of 840 Lindbergh Ave., Stroudsburg as maid of honor wore a long a-line dress in light blue with transparent sleeves. She wore a light blue veil trimmed with blue flowers and carried a bouquet of blue daisies.

Bridesmaids were the sister of the bride, Barbara Kipa, sister of the bridegroom, Jann Hodgdon; and Mrs. June Hallett and Miss Janice Pisaski.

Their gowns, in the same style were in different colors with daisies to match the gowns, green, aqua, orchid and yellow.

Juveniles have tea for mothers

STROUDSBURG — The Mother's Day tea of the Pocono Juvenile Music Study Club at Zion United Church of Christ was the final local observance of National Music Week sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs.

It was highlighted by the presentation of a gold cup to Judy Taylor, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Alan Taylor. Judy, a sixth grade student has received 16 points since entering the yearly district Junior Festivals. A piano student of Mrs. Eleanor Bender, she needed only 15 to be eligible for the gold cup. Mrs. E. Wendell Holden, regional chairman of National Music Week, made the presentation.

Other members of the Juvenile club who received superior and excellent ratings at the festival played piano solo: Robin Seidel and Karen Kulba, "superior," and Janet Marsh, Renee Kulba, Lisa Molina, Judy Taylor, Terry Butz and Raelene Molina, all "excellent."

Janet Marsh reported on the hymn of the month, "God Be With You".

A kinder symphony directed by Lucy Quig presented Hayden's "Minuet" and Schubert's "Moment Musical".

New officers were installed by the advisor, Mrs. Holden; president, Diane Dennis; vice president, Janet Marsh; secretary, Terry Butz; corresponding secretary, Ann Murray; federation secretary, Lisa Murphy; treasurer, Janice Vanderslice.

Refreshments were served with Mrs. Holden and Mrs. John G. Kulba pouring.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Chasing the details of the attempted assassination of Gov. Wallace through unifax and teletype with disturbed and somewhat feverish interest, I suddenly stopped to wonder why.

Part of it was genuine concern for his welfare, part of it a legitimate desire to know who and why it happened but the rest of it was the sort of self-feeding anxiety syndrome which characterize so many of us, especially those of us concerned with the gathering of news.

At the risk of biting the hand that furnished my bread and butter occasionally with jam on it, I'll have to admit that one factor that contributed to the relaxation of tension during a vacation, to the sound sleep and cheerful awakening was the utter absence of news.

No newspapers, radio, or television, no politics, stock market or accident reports, no Tock's Island pros or cons, no tax deficits or welfare appeals, no war news or death notices. Not even news that the grandchildren had been exposed to chicken pox or that an important social event had been left out of the calendar.

Peace! It was wonderful. Selfish, not relevant, uninvolved, uncommitted, apathetic and all the other adjectives of opprobrium — but mighty peaceful.

Not knowing about the bad things doesn't stop them from happening — and maybe knowing might help somehow. But there are times when we torture ourselves beyond the point of usefulness.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Redd Foxx of TV's black answer to "All in the Family" has a small trauma for his "Sanford & Son" hit series producer, Norman Lear: a big fat salary increase demand. Redd says he made more per week in his own less than star-sized nightclub dates.

One of the finest men we've ever known, Father Tom Carey, founder of the Blackfriars, the very first off-Bway theater group, died this week. A gentle, dedicated, quietly brilliant man of God and Theatrics, Father Tom's tombstone won't be possible to contain the list of currently starred and featured Bway, and H'wood actors and directors and backstage technicians who got their start under his warm, understanding wing. We'd known him more than 25 years, and the longer our friendship extended, the deeper his niceness and intelligence impressed. Now he has the theatrical creators and actors of the ages to enjoy in their special mummified heaven.

How did the N.Y. papers miss this: a three-week long trial of special significance went uncovered, ending in a guilty verdict for all 15 Federal Court defendants last week. They included top members of the "Black Mafia" plus several members of the Carlo Gambino Mafia "family." The ass't Federal Attorney who prosecuted was Charles Updike, the judge was Milton Pollack. The jury brought in the guilty verdict around midnight. Too late for today's reporters?

The recent New York Magazine's list of highly paid people under-guessed WOR's morning deejay John A. Gambling. Said he made $300,000 a year. The Wall St. Journal was closer: $450,000 annually. The customers at chic Unicorn are more accustomed to ogling Joe Namath, but champion Dallas

Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach dined there unnoticed with Enzo Cine, a Roman portrait painter commissioned by Rog to daub his phizz for posterity.

The Teamsters have another promissory trauma for "All in the Family" producer Norman Lear: leading American-Polish publication, the Post Eagle, enlisted the moral and tangible support of the erstwhile Hoffa-union against Archie Bunker's actuated ethnic slurs. If they get down to picketing the show, how will they get sets, costumes — and actors — through picket lines?

Here's an enterprising Cinderella: a young Miami Beach decorator Elizabeth Wynters jetted here to fancy up a Manhattan flat. Second day in town, she attended a UN cocktail drinkall, met an Iranian diplomat, peddled her bill of decor, and as a result — June 1 jets to Teheran to decorate the Shah's summer palace. Huge fee.

No word in the press either about Faye Dunaway in court all this week. Ex-manager Sy Maslow's suing ... Paulette Goddard says she's through collecting. She already must have a good percentage of the great gems, plus paintings, plus male leers available. Her precise words: "I don't want one more thing." Maybe a priceless husband? ... Hottest new Italian film star Dominique Sanda ("Garden of the Finze Continis") won't reveal officially the father of her wedless child tho she admits the rest of the tale publicly. Educated suspicions finger a noted TV-film director. American.

Les Pyrenees guests included Liza Minnelli, with Desi Arnaz Jr., of course; masticating music with Jeff Fenholt of "Superstar" between sips of vin rouge and bordelaise ... Zev Bufman, producer of Playboy's flick "The Naked Ape," didn't monkey around with its star, Victoria Principal, whose principal relaxation was jetting three times between Palm Springs and L.A. — in Sinatra's jet ... Craig Stevens will close the geographical gap between himself and beautiful wife Alexis Smith this summer simply by taking a few weeks in "Follies" during its tour. It will give co-star John McMartin a comfortable collapse ... The short arm of coincidence: as the Dem convention in Miami Beach yells and screams into history, another convention quietly (very!) takes over the Miami Beach Deauville: Nat's Ass'n of the Deaf.

The new policy's so successful, apparently, that Paley had to stand in line for a luncheon table. Considered it a pleasant irritation ... "The New Centurions" novel by our L.A. cop-friend Joe Wambaugh seems to have been turned into a first-class movie. Planned as a late-fall release, its previews nudged the management to summertime showings. George C. Scott's starred ... Arthur Miller's next play, "The Creation of the World and Other Business," gets an off-Bway tryout this summer: in Israel.

Why Bway, angels don't rush in so fast any more: about 85 per cent of Bway, stage shows flop. Fools rush in. They're never in the fortunate 15 per cent.

Ann Landers

Adoption challenge

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed many letters on adoption in your column. I have read letters from adoptive parents, adopted children, unwed mothers who gave up their babies — and even unwed fathers. But you have never printed a letter from a white couple who has adopted a child from a minority race.

My husband and I plan to adopt a black-white child and we are running into unbelievable opposition. Both his parents and mine are against it. Many of our friends say we are crazy — that we are looking for trouble. Frankly, we have given up trying to explain. They refuse to listen.

Please tell me, Ann, are we foolish to want to give our love to an innocent child who starts out in life with two strikes against him? These little ones of mixed parentage are not wanted by most people. They are, in a very real sense, handicapped. We want the challenge. We feel we are equal to it. Will you give us a word of encouragement, please?

From Iowa

Dear Iowa: You sound like a couple of beautiful, selfless, giddy people, with a great deal of love to give. The child who finds a home with you is fortunate. You two rate a 21-gun salute for your courage in my book.

Dear Ann Landers: Since evidence is mounting that non-smokers are being physically harmed by the human chimneys around them, a nationwide organization called ASH (Action on Smoking and Health), which describes itself as the legal arm of the non-smoking community, has been established. This organization has succeeded in getting the commercial airlines to isolate, via special seating, those who wish to smoke.

They estimate that hundreds of thousands of Americans have died prematurely because of cigarettes. A friend told me to write to ASH to learn more about their program and what people can do to help. Their address is 2000 H Street, Washington, D.C. 20006. I followed through and the literature I received was very informative. Do you know anything about ASH? A person can't be too careful these days.

C.T. in L.A.

Dear C.T.: ASH is an excellent organization. When I was invited to serve on the founding committee of ASH I investigated it thoroughly and accepted with pleasure. It gets a Triple-A rating from here and I hope everyone who wants to know more about it will write.

Dear Ann Landers: The high schools in our city have had a real problem with pregnant girls. It used to be that they kicked them out, even if they were married. A few years ago pressure was put on the school board to change that punitive rule, so now the pregnant girls are allowed to finish the semester, married or not.

Teachers, however, get no such privileges. We must quit teaching as soon as we enter the fourth month of pregnancy. This forces teachers to lie, wear uncomfortable girdles and loose-fitting smocks. Naturally all babies are "premature." The last arm of the non-smoking com-faculty member weighed 9 pounds and had a full head of hair.

Isn't this ridiculous? What do you think should be done?

Mad in Chicago

Dear Mad: Yes — it's ridiculous. It's also unrealistic. The rules should be changed.

Two art exhibits scheduled

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Two art exhibitions will open Saturday in Delaware Water Gap.

One is the first outdoor arts and crafts show of the season; the other the first retrospective exhibit of oil paintings by Cullen Yates (1866-1945). Both are sponsored by the Antione Dufot School and Museum.

The outdoor show will be held Saturday and Sunday and feature the work of local and neighboring artists around the triangle. The Yates show will be in the museum with more than 30 paintings until Memorial day.

Yates came to the Pocono area in 1908, making his home in Shawnee-on-Deleware. Born in Bryan, Ohio, he received his academic training at the Academy of Design in New York City and the Julian Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris.

Although he concentrated on portraits in his early years, he then turned almost exclusively to land and seascapes.

The works on display are largely drawn from local private and institutional collections. One immediately noticeable characteristic of his style is the preference for the palette knife over the brush for layering and texturing the oil paint.

Obituaries

Mrs. Anna O'Brien
STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Anna G. O'Brien, 80, of 1170 West Main St., Stroudsburg, died Tuesday in Laurel Manor. She was the widow of Vincent O'Brien.

Born in Pittston, she was a daughter of the late John and Ellen (Shannon) Garrity. She had lived in Philadelphia most of her lifetime, having moved to Stroudsburg 15 years ago.

She was a member of St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church, Stroudsburg.

She is survived by a son, Joseph Kelly, of Westfield, N.J.; a brother, Thomas Garrity, of Pittston; four sisters, Mrs. Mary Lynch and Mrs. Alysce Leonard, both of Pittston; Mrs. Margaret Collins, of Buck Hill Falls, and Mrs. Clare Coleman, of Stroudsburg, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 9:30 a.m. Friday from the William R. Thomas Funeral Home, 401 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, followed at 10 a.m. by a Mass of Resurrection in St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church, Stroudsburg.

Viewing will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home.

Burial will be in the Gates of Heaven section of Laurelwood Cemetery.

Dietitian jobs set with SCSC

HARRISBURG — Applications will be accepted continuously and eligible lists established periodically for dietitian positions at state institutions throughout the Commonwealth, according to Richard A. Rosenberry, State Civil Service Commission executive director.

Rosenberry also announced the commission has scheduled statewide and daily tests to fill beginning-level security officer positions at state institutions and parks throughout the Commonwealth.

No written test is required for the dietitian positions. Each qualified candidate will receive a rating of the training and experience reported on the application. Annual salary ranges for the five dietitian levels range from $8,163 to $17,839.

Applicants must be college or university graduates with major coursework in dietetics, hotel administration or institution-administration.

Positions exist in the departments of Education, Health and Public Welfare; and in the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, Department of Labor and Industry.

Specific information on job openings may be obtained by contacting the personnel office of the state agency or area facility in which work is desired. Applications and general information may be obtained from State Civil Service Commission Offices in Harrisburg, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

The first of the statewide tests for security officer positions will be given on August 19. Applications will be accepted until July 19. Daily tests at SCSC offices in Harrisburg, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia will begin in September.

Applicants must be Pennsylvania residents. They must know common traffic safety rules and building safety practices. No previous experience or training is required. Annual salary range is $6,197 to $7,907.

Security officers are responsible for the protection of state property. They patrol an assigned area to maintain safety and security and to assure the orderly conduct of persons in the facility.

Positions are located throughout the Commonwealth in state installations of the Departments of Public Welfare, Education, Health and Environmental Resources; The Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board, and the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation.

The written test will be held at Allentown, Wilkes-Barre and other locations.

Church officials approve hike in pastors' salaries

POCONO MANOR — The Penn Northeast Conference of the United Church of Christ closed its three-day annual meeting at Pocono Manor Inn Tuesday by adopting the 1973 budget and by raising the recommended minimum for pastors in the conference.

The total budget was passed at $605,870. Of this, $290,870 will remain in the conference in Northeast Pennsylvania for a wide variety of services in the area, and $315,000 will go to the national church for home and foreign mission work and social services.

The minimum salary for pastors in churches up to 300 members formerly has been set at $6,500 but the delegates voted to recommend that this be raised to $7,000. For churches with 301 to 500 members the minimum was raised to $7,500. For churches with 501 to 1000 members it was suggested at $8,000. For churches with more than 1,000 members it was given at $9,000.

Churches will also be encouraged to give a sabbatical leave to their pastors who have served five years. The leave would be for two months.

New officers for the conference were named. The Rev. Henry C. Meiss, Catawissa, was named moderator. Fredrick Shantstine, a layman from Palmerton, was elected vice-moderator. The conference minister Dr. William T. Longsdorf, of Palmerton, installed the officers.

Society meeting

BEAR CREEK — The regular meeting of the Altar and Rosary Society of the Churches of the Mountain, Bear Creek, will be held at 8 p.m. today in St. Elizabeth's Rectory, Bear Creek.

Professor presents paper

EASTON — Dr. Henry Fremont, biology professor at East Stroudsburg State College, recently presented an invited paper to the Pennsylvania Academy of Science during their annual meeting at Lafayette College, Easton.

His paper, "Plasmodium falciparum in the Squirrel Monkey, Ultrastructure and Anatomical Distribution of the Host Cell," concerns his studies of malaria while a visiting scientist at the Georgas Memorial Laboratory in Panama. The findings have direct implications in the parasite's biology.

In addition, Fremont has recently co-authored two articles in professional journals. One, "Deep Vascular Schizogony of Plasmodium Knowlesi in Macaca Mulatta," appears in the American Journal of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene.

The paper represents a study of the biological and pathological events as they occur in malaria and proposes a hypothesis for the distribution of malaria-infected red blood cells.

Another paper, "Effects of Macromolecules on the Rheology and Ultrastructure of Red Cell Suspensions," is presented in Transaction of the Sixth European Conference on Microcirculation.

Rovner to speak at college

EAST STROUDSBURG — State Sen. Robert A. Rovner, the youngest Republican elected to the Senate, will speak at 8 p.m. today in the East Stroudsburg State College auditorium.

The address is sponsored by the Social Affairs Board of the Student Activities Assn.

Rovner serves on various committees, including those concerning corporations, elections and reapportionment, insurance, and labor and industry.

He was the first Republican elected to the Senate from Philadelphia in more than 20 years, although his district had 25,000 more Democrats.

Before his election, he served as assistant district attorney in Philadelphia with Arlen Specter from 1968 to 1970, after receiving his doctorate in law from Temple.

Framing exhibition

EAST STROUDSBURG — Ralph Hughes will present a talk and demonstration on picture frames from 9 to 11 a.m. today in Studio 4 of Oakes Hall at East Stroudsburg State College.

The talk will provide a brief history of the craft, framing techniques and accounts of notable framing jobs he executed. The demonstration will follow, with a question and answer session included.

Hughes' experience includes 10 years with Kulicke Frames, New York City, and four years in a shop he operated there.

The program is sponsored by the Contemporary Art Assn. at the college.

Society to hold annual dance

EAST STROUDSBURG — The German-American Society of the Poconos will hold its 13th annual anniversary dance at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Elks Club, East Stroudsburg.

Dancing and entertainment will be provided by the J. Keppel Band. The Pocono Boy Singers, under the direction of K. Bernard Schade, will also perform. Tickets are available at Schrecks's Market, North Fifth St., Stroudsburg.

DRBC sewerage plan feels officials' wrath

By ANDREA B. STERN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — The Delaware River Basin Commission's (DRBC) plan to sewer the tri-state Tocks region appears to be coming under nearly as much attack these days as the proposed dam itself.

DRBC Public Information Officer Dawes Thompson said Wednesday both the sewerage system and dam projects are currently "at a standstill" pending New Jersey's re-evaluation which is expected by the end of the summer.

At the DRBC's annual governors' meeting last week in Washington, New Jersey Gov. William Cahill had reversed his previous support for the dam and surrounding park projects and learned the sewerage system "massive and unrealistic."

Cahill cited a preference for a network of smaller sewerage facilities with the potential for expansion and announced the Garden State will conduct its own Tocks environmental impact study.

"Legally the status of the project and the sewerage system remains as it was prior to the (governors') meeting but, in practical effect, the status is quite different," Thompson said of the undeclared moratorium.

Others join N.J.

As a result of Cahill's action, New York and Delaware also intend to do some re-evaluating considering that, as one of the project's principal benefiting states, New Jersey is not ready to support it.

While Pennsylvania remains an avid proponent of both projects, the Commonwealth is nonetheless being temporarily reigned "in the spirit of the regionalism of the Delaware River Basins Compact," according to Thompson.

New Jersey's action last week took both the interstate commission and regional officials by complete surprise in view of the fact that it had voted in favor of the sewerage system at the DRBC's March 29 meeting. The system as passed, includes amendments giving it added flexibility which were included at New Jersey's request.

As revised, the sewerage plan incorporates additional leeway into the staging of the facilities as the need for them develops and in opening up the potential for the use of alternative methods such as spray irrigation where both the quality of the Tocks Reservoir and the Delaware River would not be jeopardized.

It further stages the development of waste collection and treatment facilities in the Broadhead Creek and Pauline Kill Watershed areas of the Tocks Region to meet specific needs as they arise there. Thompson explained the reason for this is that their tributaries drain into the Delaware below the reservoir site.

Study warranted

Seymour D. Selzer, head of the DRBC's program planning branch, indicated the commission intends to conduct an engineering study of the potential for using spray irrigation in the Tocks region.

With this method, raw sewerage is treated to a safe level, disinfected and then, instead of being discharged into a water course or stream, is sprayed over land — often land being used for cultivation.

With the spray eventually seeping down into the ground water, the method requires a certain depth of soil and can pose various problems in winter, according to Selzer.

The scope of the DRBC's study would include a survey of the region's soils and an analysis of its population and growth to determine where the method could be applied, he said.

"This is not a substitute for other aspects but it might be an interim step where population is sparse," contended Selzer.

"We are trying to use every available technique to accomplish the goals spelled out in the resolution," he added, referring to the March 29 adoption of the revised system at which time the project's overall objective was restated as full protection of Tocks water quality.

Selzer said the studies on spray irrigation will probably be underway this year and noted the DRBC will carry out a sewerage feasibility study by next year on various alternative systems and the practicality of implementing them.

STROUDSBURG — Despite impatience by some members of the Pennsylvania Legislature, local governments in Monroe County will probably continue to ignore the state's new home rule law until the statute's complexity is unraveled.

Rep. Samuel Rappaport, D-Philadelphia, last week told a gathering of about 400 local government officials, "We in the Legislature are damned sick and tired of having to pass laws that apply to only one or two municipalities."

Rappaport made his statement at a meeting designed to explain the law to the officials. Seminars and conferences to explain the law have proliferated since it was passed almost a month ago. One such meeting is scheduled for Saturday at Le Chateau in White Haven.

Under the law, local governments can, with the approval of the voters, establish home rule charters or one of the optional forms of government set forth in the law.

Monroe County Treasurer Thomas Joyce who serves on the Local Government Committee of the Pennsylvania Association of Elected Officials said Wednesday most counties throughout the state do not need to change their form of government.

Joyce said many local governments in the state have all the power they need at their disposal if current statutes were used to their fullest potential.

Few need it

He said the new home rule law may be useful in counties where elected officials are never in their offices. Joyce said the law would thus apply to about six or seven of Pennsylvania's 67 counties.

The provisions of the law apply to municipalities and township governments and is not limited to counties, but Joyce said it will probably be used first by county level governments.

He cited the example of Lancaster County seeking to change their county government from a three-commissioner board to an expanded body of 19 commissioners.

Prior to the passage of the home rule bill, Pennsylvania local governments were required to assume their present form on the basis of population. Under the new enactment, local government has been ostensibly granted state permission to fashion government according to the will of the voters.

The process of change is complex, mitigating against rapid and unrepresentative change.

It would begin with a "yes or no" question on an election ballot asking if a study commission of seven, nine or eleven members be elected to consider the advisability of adopting an optional form of government or draft a recommended format for a new governmental structure.

The question may be placed on the ballot by an ordinance of the governing body or by a petition of the registered voters to the board of electors of the county. The number of signatures required on the petition varies with the type of governing unit being petitioned.

If voters say "yes," a study commission should be formed, they must say so in numbers based on percentages of those voting in past municipal or state elections before the question will carry.

For example, a "yes" vote by at least five per cent of the total voters in the last gubernatorial election will be sufficient to approve the formulation of a study group to examine a county government.

If the question is passed, persons wishing to serve on the study commission stand for election to the commission, but only those with the most votes will be placed on the study group until all positions are filled.

Once the commission is established, it organizes 15 days later and goes into nine months of hearings and information gatherings. At the end of the nine months a report is submitted to the state Department of Community Affairs.

That report may be amended for one year.

Next the recommendation of the study commission is placed on the ballot for voter approval. The recommendation may be that no change be made in the form of government. It may be one of four optional forms of government outlined in the law.

Or the recommendation may be for a new government devised by the study commission to meet the needs of the local area.

A simple majority vote on the recommendation will decide whether a new government is adopted. If a majority votes for the change, it must be instituted.

Application of the home rule law is expected to be as complex as the law itself, if not more so. Observers of Pennsylvania local governments predict 30 counties will never employ the law and any counties expected to use the new statute will wait a long time before changes become effective.

Pause that . . .

Stroudsburg teachers file unfair labor practice case

By CONRAD GROVE
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg School Board got slapped with an unfair labor practice charge Wednesday night by the Stroudsburg Area Teachers Assn. for allegedly releasing copies of future salaries to teachers.

The two groups have yet to ratify a contract for next year.

Kenneth Lee, president of the teachers' group, said administrators were "handing out" copies of salaries for 1972-73 and 1973-74 and called the action a violation of Act 195, which gives public employees the right to collectively bargain.

"Since the area of salary or indeed, any area of negotiations, has not yet been settled, this act constitutes bad faith negotiating and is an unfair labor practice act," Lee said.

Lee stated the matter came to his attention Monday and he found the allegations to be true. He then sent a letter to Donald Stone, board president, informing him unless the "distribution of these materials stopped," the teachers would file charges with the state Labor Relations Board.

"Since this action of the board and the administration is continuing," said Lee, "I am now notifying you that the necessary papers have been filed."

"I am very disappointed that the board has chosen to engage in such an act, but I am even more fearful of the implications this act holds for the Stroudsburg Area School District."

"For you to disregard the procedures of negotiating is alarming, but for us to allow it to continue would be intolerable," charged Lee.

Board Solicitor Samuel Newman rebutted by saying the professional staff has a right to know what's being proposed.

Lee contended salary information can only come from the bargaining agent — in this case, the teachers' association — under his interpretation of Act 195.

Newman, however, added the matter of supplying teachers with such material has "a long history in the district" and said the board didn't interfere with collective bargaining talks.

He said he was "surprised" the teachers filed the charge, claiming "it does not even come close to being an unfair labor practice."

Board's authorized report

STROUDSBURG — The following is the authorized report released from a special meeting of the Advisory Committee of the Children's Bureau of Monroe County held Wednesday:

A special meeting of the Advisory Committee of the Children's Bureau of Monroe County met Wednesday, May 17. Mrs. Katherine McKenna and Mr. Louis Marmo from the regional office of the Department of Public Welfare were in attendance.

The advisory committee was made aware of the new Regional Advisory Committee that has been formed and the relationship of this committee to the Monroe County advisory committee was discussed.

Mrs. McKenna informed the group that the persons appointed from this county to represent Monroe County on this new regional committee were to serve in a general advisory capacity to the Regional Deputy Secretary of Public Welfare to keep him informed of the programs, needs and concerns of all welfare agencies in the county.

Because of this, the statement continues, "the advisory committee feels that it is important that these persons be invited to attend all of our regular committee meetings so that they may be kept informed of all the endeavors and concerns of our committee."

"We also discussed our continued interest in Day Care and were glad for the willingness of the representatives from our regional office to meet with the commissioners to explain in further detail the steps that might be taken to establish additional Day Care facilities and to answer their questions concerning Day Care."

The statement is signed by John D. Zenda, chairman and Mrs. Richard Primrose, publicity chairman.

Firemen battle barn blaze

READERS — Firemen from the Jackson and Pocono Township Volunteer Fire Departments battled a barn fire for approximately three hours Wednesday night after the structure was apparently struck by lightning.

The barn, located on what is known in the area as the Rustine Estate near Readers, was engulfed in flames by the time firefighters arrived and most of the night's efforts were spent on preventing the blaze from spreading.

A spokesman from the Pocono Township department, which was called in to assist the Jackson Township firemen, said the barn was estimated a total loss. "It burned right to the ground," he said.

The number of men and pieces of equipment involved in the operation was not immediately known.

Bids for middle school to be opened in June

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg School Board Wednesday night set June 21 as the date to open bids for the district's proposed middle school.

Final approval for the project — expected to wear a more than $5 million price tag — was just granted by the state education department.

The school, to be circular in design, utilizes the "open-space" concept and will hold 1,700 students. It was designed by Rinker, Kiefer and Rake, of Stroudsburg.

The open-space concept makes large areas for flexible grouping available. The school will be located on Chipperfield Drive.

In other action, the board: — Re-elected Samuel Newman as solicitor at an annual salary of $2,500, with John Baymor as treasurer at $600.

— Appointed A.J.

Berkheimer, Bangor, earned income tax collector for next year and Crane and Gordon as auditors at $1,600.

— Set the salary for the school medical examiner and athletic team physician at $3,100 and the salary for Dr. John Lim, board secretary, at $1,200 yearly.

— Awarded a contract for refuse collection to Joseph Hopkins and Son at $138 monthly for 10 months. E.M. Rinehart was given the nod for a summer bus route at $32 daily.

— Swung to four companies for janitorial supplies totaling $1,943.17: Class Janitor Supply Co. at $517.20, Fuller Brush Co. at $58.32, D&L Supply Co. at $470.25 and Laesser Paper and Supply at $897.40.

— Hired five teachers: Miss Carol Bergman, Miss Andrea Chares, Mrs. Margie Berryman Lesoine, Mrs. Lynne Eberz and Robert DiGregoria.

Day Care to be pursued

SCRANTON — Day Care in Monroe County will be pursued by the Department of Public Welfare despite a vote taken against the program by the Monroe County Commissioners in April, a welfare spokesman said Wednesday.

Mrs. Katherine McKenna, area director for the regional office of the Department of Public Welfare, said she would meet with the commissioners to advocate Day Care for Monroe County.

Mrs. McKenna made the statement following a closed meeting with the Monroe County Children's Bureau Advisory Board.

She said the Day Care program in Monroe County would be part of an effort to have Day Care programs in the entire northeastern region of Pennsylvania. Such programs have been mandated by the state department.

Mrs. McKenna said nine of the 15 counties in the region currently are involved with the Day Care programs. "We hope to add Monroe to that list," she said.

The Monroe County Commissioners voted against government sponsored Day Care, claiming a number of questions about the program were unanswered and not enough time was available to have the questions answered before application deadline.

Mrs. McKenna said the commissioners, as elected officials, have a "perfect right to have any questions answered." She said she would contact the commissioners today for an appointment to discuss Day Care.

Contract terms

Under the terms of the contract proposed to the commissioners in April, the county would have funded the Day Care program for $10,000, the state would have put up $15,000 and federal funds would be obtained to balance out the $100,000 program.

Local Day Care advocates said 101 children had been identified as in need of the program. They said Day Care would help low income families and priority would be given welfare recipients as incentive to find jobs.

During the elapsed time between the vetoed proposal and the current efforts, state funds for the program may have vanished, changing the funding schedule.

Mrs. McKenna said the $15,000 state funds may no longer be available. "I think it will not be possible to have state funds," she said. However, she would not absolutely rule out state support.

If there are no state funds available, a new Day Care contract would divide the financing between the county and the federal government. Federal money would still be $75,000, but the county now would have to put up $25,000 to make up for lost state support.

Mrs. McKenna said she thought one of the reasons the program took a dive in the first round was that no written proposal had been completed by the time the vote ended round one in Monroe County.

She said Miss Phyllis Kunda, executive director of the children's bureau, was working on a written proposal.

Mrs. McKenna said she discussed other issues with the advisory committee for the children's bureau.

Among these, she said, was the recent appointment of a regional advisory council in Monroe County directly responsible to Elliot Knauer, regional director for the department of public welfare.

Investigate needs

Mrs. McKenna said the council, comprised of Judge James R. Marsh, Dr. Thomas Blair, and Attorney Peter O'Brien, was formed to discern the needs of the county in terms of programming and aid from the welfare department.

Ironically, one member of the newly formed council, Blair, was kept from the meeting between Mrs. McKenna and the advisory committee Wednesday.

A vote was taken by the members of the advisory board for the children's bureau favoring a closed door meeting and Blair was asked to leave the room.

Mrs. McKenna said she saw no reason why the meeting should have been closed. She said she thought the advisors would change in the future.

Stating the administration is committed to having open meetings of all types of boards, Mrs. McKenna said it was to the advantage of any advisory committee to have as much community involvement as possible in their program.

Attorney Ronald Mishkin, member of the advisory board, later said the curtain drop on the meeting was the result of a lack of communication between the advisors and Blair.

"We are all striving for the same goal," Mishkin said, "perhaps it was a mistake on everyone's part." He said the three members of the council including Blair would be invited to the next meeting of the advisory board.

The meeting was also called to discuss some of the problems within the Children's Bureau. Duplication of service and lack of communication with other agencies were mentioned as the problems discussed.

Teacher's notebook

Personality beats gadgets

By MRS. JUDITH GELBER

Whenever I pass through the mountainous displays of toys, gadgets, gimmicks and books marked "educational," I think about my generation playing with clothespins, and yet getting through childhood without feeling that we had come from "educationally deprived" homes.

I must admit, however, that my own children were as much victims of their parents' expensive mania to "educate" them as soon as they could focus their eyes as any of today's infants. But I have the sneaking suspicion that a sticker that my 11-year-old son pasted on his mirror makes more sense, in a nonsensical way, than the costly blocks and boards we bought so many years ago to teach him otherwise: "A square peg in a round hole is better than an empty hole."

We, too, rigged our children's cribs with expensive contraptions that fluttered, rattled, whistled, danced and played Brahms' "Lullaby" every time the baby jiggled. And we, too, provided extravagant "workbenches" with wooden tools that were supposed to teach coordination, but gave Mommy an extravagant headache. Then there were the toy phonographs that were meant to build an appreciation of music, but drove Daddy up the financial wall buying all those records. And only years later did we learn that the ability to bark like a dog, or meow like a cat at the right time is not necessarily a sign of potential genius.

Today, however, I wonder whether bits of colored paper on strings attached to a coathanger can't provide the same attention-getter for baby as those expensive music-box mobiles. And I also wonder whether baby doesn't learn a great deal more about music when mommy and daddy sing to him than when they put him in the playpen, plug in the record-player and leave the room.

We hear and read so much about giving our children the proper background for succeeding in school that we resort to the vigorous shove rather than the gentle nudge for a walk through a field of wildflowers, we provide them with books (on botany). And instead of answering questions about why the people in Australia don't fall off the globe, we buy expensive encyclopedias.

I was startled to learn that a major function of a new program to help young schoolchildren from underprivileged homes was simply to provide an adult who would answer a child's questions about what goes on in the world around him. A little thought, however, made me realize that I had been missing the obvious.

In our zeal to provide our children with what we supposedly missed when we were young, we have relied more on what money can buy, rather than on what we can give to our children of ourselves. And I am convinced that the not-always-patient answers to a child's endless questions do more for his success in school than all of the expensive "educational" gimmicks combined.

My generation, therefore, by comparison, was educationally privileged; mommy and daddy didn't plunk us down in front of the television set and walk out!

No easy answer to energy crisis

By GAIL NEVINS

STROUDSBURG — According to a National Audubon Society news release, "Geothermal energy shows great promise as a significant source of cheap, relatively clean electrical power, but it isn't the answer to everything, not even the much-discussed energy crisis."

The quote comes from an article by environmentalist Gary Soucie in the May issue of AUDUBON.

The society is particularly interested in the energy crisis because all currently available major energy sources entail severe environmental problems, from the strip-mining of coal to offshore well blow-outs, to the disposal of radioactive wastes from nuclear reactors.

According to recent calculations, the amount of geothermal heat in the outer 10 kilometers of the Earth's crust (the approximate limit of drilling technology at present) is about 300 septillion calories, or more than 2,000 times the heat energy of all the known coal resources of the world.

Much of this is far too diffuse to be useful. However, there are places around the globe where geothermal energy is concentrated in volumes and depths within our technological and economic grasp.

The vast force of geothermal energy is felt wherever faults, fissures, cracks and vents in the earth's crust allow steam and hot water to escape to the surface. Examples are the hissing mud cauldrons in Yellowstone National Park and Reykjavik, capital of Iceland, which derives over half its space heat from electricity generated by geothermal energy.

Geothermal plants around the world now produce about one-tenth of one per cent of the world's total electric generating capacity from all sources. This kind of power has distinct environmental advantages: It doesn't emit tons of air pollutants; it doesn't require damming of streams for pumped storage reservoirs; it doesn't involve questions of radioactive safety.

Pointing out the environmental problems of geothermal power development, Soucie looks at the inevitable land-use conflicts. At what point is an individual willing to sacrifice his backyard, site of geothermal power, for the power needs of the many? Is geothermal leasing possible in wilderness areas? If we had been aware of our energy crisis 50 years ago, would we still have Yellowstone National Park intact today?

Finally, there is wide divergence of opinion among experts on the question of how important geothermal power might be in the total energy picture. John Nassikas, Chairman of the Federal Power Commission, claims geothermal power will rival hydroelectric power and perhaps even nuclear power, whereas the Interior Department refers to it as a supplementary energy source.

Most importantly, Soucie cautions that "we don't have any kind of energy policy framework in which to judge geothermal power, no goals against which we could measure its contribution, even if we knew what that might be. Yet the lack of a national energy policy doesn't seem to worry anyone but conservationists."

Lehigh studying law school

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UPI) — Lehigh University announced recently that an intensive study was underway into the possibility of establishing a law school.

A preliminary study of the matter was first started by a committee of the Lehigh faculty and then continued by the Lehigh Forum.

The Forum, a 125-member joint student-faculty-administrator legislative body at the university, has now voted for the more intensive current study.

Mutual funds Stocks gain in late burst

New York (UPI) — The New York Stock Exchange closed on a mixed note Wednesday, May 17, 1972, with the Dow Jones Industrial Average ending at 944.61, up 1.86 points from 942.75.

The market was characterized by a late-day surge in stocks, particularly in the technology and financial sectors. The volume of trading was high, reflecting the volatility of the market.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average closed at 944.61, up 1.86 points from 942.75. The S&P 500 index rose 0.23 points to 106.89. The average price of a NYSE common share increased by seven cents.

Declines, however, led advances, 708 to 668, among 1,749 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover totaled 13,600,000 shares, down from the 14,070,000 traded Tuesday.

The buying surge came with just minutes remaining before the final bell. The economic news background was favorable. Industrial production rose sharply in April and personal income also rose.

The overall caution which dominated much of the session was caused by continued concern over the Vietnam War, according to Leo Lancer, analyst for Bruns-Nordeman. "Investors apparently are looking for some major news development to spur them," Lancer said. That might come with President Nixon's scheduled trip to Moscow, he said.

"It's a soggy situation," said Monte Gordon, analyst for Sartorius & Co. He noted the market has not moved much and said the low volume was an indication of this.

Gulf Oil was the most active issue, unchanged at 24 1/4 on 231,800 shares. N. L. Industries was second, up 1/4 at 14 1/4 on 217,200 shares, including a block of 200,000 shares at 14 1/4.

Gold mining issues were higher in wake of South Africa's decision to reduce the amount of gold bullion it is offering for sale. Gold prices soared in Europe. The sharp gainers here included Campbell Red Lake up 4 1/4; American South Africa, 2 1/4, and Dome mines, 2 1/4.

The late buying pushed some of the electronics and computer issues higher. IBM climbed 5/8 and Motorola 4. Fairchild Camera, however, dropped 2 1/4. The firm said the Internal Revenue Service says it owes $23 million in back taxes.

American Research & Development and Tectron added 1/2 each after their stockholders approved a merger.

Strike Rite gained 1 1/4. Company officials said they could not understand the activity in their stock.

Tobin Packing slipped 3/4. Trading was halted in the issue shortly before the firm announced it was omitting its quarterly dividend.

Steels, motors, airlines and aircrafts were mixed in fractions. National advanced 1/4. The airline reported higher first quarter earnings.

Chemicals and rails mostly were higher. DuPont (ex-dividend) rose a point.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex index advanced 0.03 to 27.61. Turnover amounted to 3,960,000 shares compared with 3,930,000 traded Tuesday.

Prejudice cure

By Jean Adams

TRYING TIME: (Q.) (Comment) I went to private school for eight years, but now I am in a public high school and getting my first taste of racial discrimination. Only I'm not sure just who is being discriminated against.

The black girls at school come up to someone and say, "You gotta dime, girl?" You say no and they say, "Lemme see," and reach for your purse.

In my study hall two of them sat beside me. When they tried the dime game on me the first time I sort of acted like "You nuts or something?" and said no. They tried it two more times and I said no. On the third day they met me after school and went through the same routine.

Then they grabbed my purse and opened it. I grabbed for it and one girl knocked me down. I got up and kicked one of them halfheartedly (I'm really chicken). They grabbed my hair and pulled in opposite directions. Then they laughed and walked off. I noticed then a bunch of black kids were watching and laughing and cheering.

That night my mother and I went to the principal's house. He didn't exactly perform any miracles. But he said I could change the study hall so I wouldn't be around them. I did, but for a few weeks I couldn't walk down the hall without my heart pounding a dent into my ribs.

I'm not really scared anymore. Just kind of numb. And the black kids don't bother me any more. But I had always thought of myself as unprejudiced. Now I'm not sure.

Sadder If Not Wiser In New Jersey

(A.) Each day, in school or out, we learn something. The learning sometimes comes fast and uncomfortably at a new school. This is true of any school, any time.

At this particular time, we are in a historic stage of learning. Different kinds of people are learning about each other in a way never extensively tried before.

Just as you have learned, so have the black students about whom you write learned. They are learning every day, just as you are.

They do not yet completely understand you. They do not know all about your values and customs and rules, just as you do not know all about theirs, and do not completely understand them.

Try to understand them. In your unhappy but well-told story is a long history of misunderstanding, and a vignette of a very difficult time.

Again I say, try to understand them. True understanding is the only true cure for prejudice.

Riot emergency

TANARIVE, Republic of Malagasy (UPI)—The Republic of Malagasy was under a national state of emergency Sunday following battles between students and police which reportedly left 12 persons dead and 150 injured. In ordering the state of emergency, President Philibert Tsiranana warned against what he called Communist subversion in the country formerly Madagascar.

Harris Survey shows foreign policy gain for Nixon

By LOUIS HARRIS

The idea of holding a summit meeting in Russia was strongly backed by the American people before the President's decision to mine Haiphong harbor and cancellation could carry a political price for Nixon in November. Contrary to the much-repeated theory that foreign policy has little impact on voting behavior, the Harris Survey has found a key ingredient of the improvement of Richard Nixon's vote standing over the past several months to be his handling of relations with Russia and China.

In a period marked by little confidence in political leadership of nearly any stripe, Nixon's announcement of journeys to Moscow and Peking met with remarkably high acceptance from the American public. The public in April supported his scheduled summit trip to Moscow by 74-13 per cent, as they had approved of his earlier Peking visit by 73-15 per cent.

What is more, by a clear majority, 55-34 per cent, Americans believed that substantial, long-term agreements could be reached between Russia and the U.S. An even larger 62 per cent expected that the Moscow journey would produce some real agreement.

The political impact of such visits is measurable in two ways. First, when the public is asked which party they feel can better work for peace in the world between the U.S. and Russia and China, the Republicans have held a wide 45-29 per cent lead over the Democrats.

There is little doubt that with his willingness to visit Communist capitals, President Nixon had been able to capture the initiative on the issue of peace. Although some of the edge might have been taken off this advance by the recent course of fighting in Vietnam, Nixon was in a position to win back ground with the conclusion of successful arguments with the Soviet Union.

A second measure of the political effectiveness of Nixon on diplomacy can be found in his improved ratings in "working for peace in the world." Last July, the public was divided on its estimate of how well Nixon was working for peace: 48 per cent positive and 48 per cent negative.

But in an April Harris Survey, the score on this pivotal issue had gone to 59-38 per cent positive, despite public worries over Vietnam. When voting preferences were analyzed by how people rated Nixon on working for peace, the true impact of the peace issue began to emerge:

VOTING PREFERENCES BY NIXON RATING ON WORKING FOR PEACE

Voting Preference:	Positive		Negative
	58 per cent	38 per cent	58 per cent	38 per cent
Nixon	56	16
Humphrey	25	56
Wallace	14	23
Not Sure	5	5

Clearly, the question of how well the President is perceived as an agent for peace is what divides the electorate down the middle. It is easy to see that if the 59-38 per cent positive division on this score were reversed, Nixon would lose his lead in the polls and would have a difficult time achieving re-election, irrespective of other developments at home.

NIXON RATING ON "WORKING FOR PEACE" AMONG FOREIGN POLICY ORIENTED GROUPS

	Positive			Negative			Not Sure
	59	38	3	59	38	3	59	38	3
Nationwide	59	38	3	59	38	3	59	38	3
Under 30	54	44	2	54	44	2	54	44	2
Suburbs	62	36	2	62	36	2	62	36	2
College educated	65	33	2	65	33	2	65	33	2
$15,000 and over	63	36	1	63	36	1	63	36	1

These positive ratings for the President were all the more remarkable because consistently the Harris Survey has also found that his sharpest critics on Vietnam have been drawn from precisely these same groups. For example, a majority of all four groups felt that the pace of withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam had been "too slow."

Lightning hits service station

BUSHKILL — Bushkill firemen doused an electrical fire caused by lightning Monday night in a Bushkill service station owned by Lawrence DePue.

Damage was "light," according to Chief Robert Rohner. Four trucks and 25 men responded.

Your Horoscope
Frances Drake
TAURUS

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) To make gains now: Make necessary adjustments, conclude pending transactions and grant some leeway where others are expecting you to "hold the line." In other words, give a little.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) Put your best foot forward as you are now in the forefront where you will be observed — and judged. New trends are in the making. Study them carefully.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) You may have to revise some plans, change tactics, perhaps hold a conference or two. But, in the end, what you do well now will produce substantial dividends later.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) Your incentive and ambition heightened now. A day for carrying out unique plans but, in the doing, emphasize fair play for all.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) You may encounter some natural differences of opinion, so adjustments and compromise will be in order. Don't yield where matters of high principle are at stake, however.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) For the straight-shooting, up-and-up person, this day has many opportunities. Heed prerequisites, be consistently accurate, and you cannot fail.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) How you present yourself now will either attract cooperation or detract from your standing, up or downgrade your attainment. Be scrupulous about ethics, procedure.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) Excellent planetary influences! Make use of them to advance all worthwhile aims, to strengthen financial security. Emphasize your versatility.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) You should have easier sledding than many others now — as long as you are accurate and conduct your affairs with logic and candor. Curb a tendency toward recklessness.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) In financial matters, be extremely meticulous, moving in gradual, well-measured steps. In all other activities, be sure you take every factor into consideration. Some misleading influences.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) Uncertainty could offset the results of your best efforts, so be decisive. Marshal all your talents, will power and experience with a view toward taking brisk steps forward.

(February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) You may not be able to manage everything you wish, but you can stay on the right track and achieve a lot. Where needed, revise schedule without delay.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine mind, unusual versatility and extraordinary business acumen. You are extremely ambitious — not, as many Taurans, for great causes or for the sake of achievement in itself — but on a more personal and material scale. And, because you have the tenacity to keep plugging toward your goals and the concentration of purpose needed to achieve them, you usually succeed — often acquiring a fortune along the way. With all of this stress on material gain you are, however, a most philosophical individual and can take the bad with the good with considerable equanimity. Along artistic lines, you have a strong affinity for music and could make an enviable name for yourself in this field. Other careers which you could successfully adopt: Dramatic criticism, playwrighting, business counseling, finance. Traits to curb: Intolerance and dictatorialness. Birthdate of: Sir Bertrand Russell, philosopher; Perry Como, singer; Dame Margot Fonteyn, renowned ballerina.

Pet Show plans set

GREELEY — Plans for the second Annual Pet Show sponsored by the Greeley Grange 2053 are well underway, it was announced at a recent meeting of the organization.

The show will be held Sunday, May 21 at the Greeley Community Center for children of the area. Mrs. Leo Lenane and Jack Borad will serve as judges.

Master Carla Schultz installed Harold Fahy as steward. He was elected to fill the unexpired term of William Wovin who is ill.

Officials announced the Annual Chicken Barbecue will be held from 1:30 to 5 p.m., Sunday, June 11.

Tanker refloated

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 661-foot tanker loaded with 230,000 barrels of oil ran aground in the East River off Manhattan's 14th Street around midnight Saturday but was refloated without any oil spillage about six hours later. The Coast Guard said the Liberian tanker Desert Leader had been chartered by the Hess Oil Co. and was headed to the New England Petroleum dock in Brooklyn with No. 6 oil from St. Croix, Virgin Islands. It ran aground while trying to turn around in the river.

Power pole catches fire

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Volunteer Fire Department responded to a power pole fire at Ninth and Sarah St., Stroudsburg Monday night after an apparent electrical overload caused wire insulation to begin burning.

About four trucks and approximately 30 men stood by until Pennsylvania Power and Light engineers arrived and turned off power at the pole.

Traffic in the area was rerouted for about two hours while the operation was underway. There were no initial reports of power outages.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

In loving memory of our son, Pvt. Robert Jones, age 22, Company A, 2nd Battalion, 22nd Marines, who died February 19, 1944, during the battle of Eniwetok.
Dr. and Mrs. John Jones

MEYERS
In loving memory of my beloved wife, Mary Meyers, who passed away May 2, 1937.
To know her was to love her
Both for family and friend
And the sweetness of her memory
Time can neither dim nor end.
Nathaniel Meyers

Carpet with more carpet in it.

Here's a carpet that has 67% more Acrilan® acrylic pile than is standard. So it's extra long wearing.

Acrilan® acrylic pile defies soil, stains, and matting.

This thick, dense pile won't collapse under heavy furniture or a parade of marching feet. Resists ground-in grime and family spills.

Beautiful sculptured carpet, painstakingly woven.

So intricately patterned, it takes 12 times longer than tufted carpet to manufacture—giving it detail and beauty that lasts for years.
